THE COLLEGE OF COMMUNICATION AND INFORMATION BYLAWS [As amended - 10/20/23]

I. Name

These bylaws are created for the College of Communication and Information [hereinafter referred to as the “College].”

II. Principles

A. Communication

Communication between the Faculty and the College administration should be open and clear to ensure maximum Faculty participation in administrative affairs. This includes Faculty approval of the creation of academic programs or the elimination of existing academic programs with curricular matters not being mandated solely by budgetary decisions. The Faculty should also participate in establishing long-range goals and strategies, and should be consulted in the selection and retention of administrative officers of the College including the Dean, Associate Dean(s), and Directors.

B. Schools

While the nature, extent, and particular form of Faculty participation in academic affairs may differ among Schools, the Faculty is responsible for decisions on curriculum and degree programs and requirements. The Faculty provides advice on (a) decisions regarding the hiring of new Faculty members, including the choice of new Directors; and (b) consideration of tenure and promotion of Faculty members. Each School shall, in accordance with the Faculty Handbook, develop bylaws regulating decisions on curriculum, degree programs and requirements, the hiring of new personnel, and the tenure and promotion of Faculty members.

C. Diversity

The College of Communication and Information recognizes that a college diverse in its people, curricula, scholarship, research, and creative activities expands opportunities for intellectual inquiry and engagement, helps students develop critical thinking skills, and prepares students for social and civic responsibilities. All members of the College benefit from diversity and the quality of learning, research, scholarship and creative activities is enhanced by a climate of inclusion, understanding and appreciation of differences and the full range of human experience. As a result, the College is committed to diversity and equal opportunity and it recognizes that it must represent the diversity inherent in American society. The College is acutely aware that diversity and fairness are foundations that unite the College’s faculty, staff, students, and the larger communication and information community.

III. Precedence of Bylaws

A. University Policies and Procedures

College Bylaws, particularly when dealing with the responsibilities and authority of administrators and Faculty, shall reflect the policies and procedures found in the current Faculty Handbook and other social documents stating University of Tennessee policies. Nothing in these bylaws shall abridge the respective powers and prerogatives residing in the University Faculty or the University Administration.

B. College Bylaws

The College Bylaws precede those of the Schools. Schools may not enact bylaws that conflict with those of the College.

C. School Affairs

Faculty members shall decide on matters of concern to their School, especially in curricular and Faculty affairs. College oversight of School decisions shall be limited to matters that directly impact another School or the College as a whole.

IV. College Governance

A. Membership

1. Member Qualifications

All persons holding a full-time faculty appointment in the College are voting members. Administrators with academic rank are voting members.

2. Additional Members

An individual formally associated with the College may be admitted into membership upon a two-thirds affirmative vote of the entire membership after that request has been included in the meeting agenda. Such membership shall be limited to one academic year. The new member may not vote until the meeting following admission to voting membership.

At the discretion of the presiding officer, and with the consent of the voting members, non-voting members may be granted the floor to address a matter about which they have particular knowledge or experience. ## B. College Meetings

1. Regular Meetings

The Dean shall call and conduct at least two regular meetings each year with one in the fall term and the other in the spring term. In addition to the meetings specified above, the College may also meet at the call of the Dean or upon request of fifteen percent of the membership or upon the formal request of the majority of members of a standing committee. A meeting must be held within ten working days of such a formal request.

a. Agenda Distribution

The Dean shall distribute to all members an agenda five working days in advance of a scheduled College meeting. Meetings shall be announced publicly to comply with open meeting requirements.

2. School Administrative and Professional Staff

Professional staff members within the Schools are appointed without a definite term and serve at the pleasure of the Director. The Director evaluates professional staff each year. In preparation for this evaluation, the School Director solicits anonymous written comment from each Faculty member of the School.

VI. Working Groups of the College

A. Overview

1. Purpose

The purpose of the College-wide standing committees is to identify and solve problems of interest to the College as a whole. Committees within each School should deal with matters of particular importance to that School.

Advisory councils provide the Dean with advice on a variety of topics important to the College. While advice is sought and valued, the Dean alone has the authority to make decisions for the College in matters other than the curriculum. The Board of Visitors, the Dean's Advisory Council, and the Administrative Committee are continuing advisory councils. The Dean may create other councils as needed.

Other working groups within the College are formed to meet specific purposes either as detailed in these bylaws or in the charges to those groups as they are formed.

2. Membership

Unless otherwise specified, voting membership in all committees of the College shall be limited to Faculty members as defined in section IV.A.1. However, voting members of the committee may choose to invite contingent Faculty, staff and/or students to join the committee and may assign voting privileges to those members as appropriate. Unless otherwise specified, committee members shall elect the chair of the committee.

3. Meetings

Unless otherwise noted, the general principles for College meetings outlined in section IV.B apply to meetings of working groups of the College. Standing committees should meet throughout the academic year as needed to accomplish their duties.

The duties and responsibilities assigned to the Dean for College meetings shall be assigned to chairs of working groups of the College unless otherwise specified.

4. Reporting

Working groups should follow procedures noted in section IV.B for distribution of agendas and minutes of meetings. In addition, a report summarizing the activities of each working group shall be presented to the College at the end of each academic year unless the minutes and/or year-end report contain confidential personnel matters.

B. Standing Committees

1. Faculty Affairs Committee

a. Purpose and Duties

The Faculty Affairs Committee shall consider and make recommendations on issues of particular concern to the Faculty such as evaluation of Faculty performance, and workload issues. The charge is to 1) consider requests for tenure and promotion of tenure-track faculty; 2) consider requests for promotion for non-tenure-track faculty; and 3) review policies and procedures to ensure that the College Faculty is treated in an equitable and professional manner.

When a Faculty member requests tenure and/or promotion consideration, tenure-track members of the Faculty Affairs Committee shall review recommendations by School tenure/promotion committees. Following the language in the Faculty Handbook, the committee brings “broader Faculty and administrative judgments to bear and also monitors general standards of quality, equity, and adequacy of procedures used.”

When a Faculty member requests promotion in a non-tenure-track position, the Faculty Affairs Committee will include non-tenure-track members above the rank of the candidate under review and shall review the promotion cases forwarded by the Schools.

The Faculty Affairs Committee also processes nominations for College-level faculty awards.

b. Term

Two tenured Faculty members and one non-tenure track faculty member above the rank of the candidate(s) under review appointed by each School Director shall serve a two-year term staggered within the unit.

c. Additional Considerations

All individuals who are being considered for promotion to full professor must be evaluated by at least three (full) professors at the College level, only two of whom can be from the same unit. If there are insufficient eligible voting members on the Committee for a particular dossier, the Dean will appoint an ad hoc member of the Committee for that dossier only. All individuals who are being considered for the highest level of promotion in a non-tenure-track title must be evaluated by at least three non-tenure-track faculty at the highest rank at the College level, only two of whom can be from the same unit. In both cases if there are insufficient eligible voting members on the Committee for a particular case, the Dean will appoint an ad hoc member of the Committee for that case only.

d. Tenure and/or Promotion Recommendations

Recommendations for promotion and tenure in the College of Communication and Information shall be made in full accordance with established policies and procedures of the University of Tennessee, Knoxville, as outlined in the current edition of the Faculty Handbook. Within CCI, criteria for faculty promotion and tenure are varied and complex. They recognize that each faculty position has its own distinctive requirements and that the missions of the academic units within the college are highly diverse. Moreover, advancement in academic rank and/or the award of tenure must be based on a faculty member's demonstrated proficiency in fulfilling his/her particular role and in contributing to the performance of his/her School's mission. Faculty and the director in each school make a recommendation for promotion and tenure in accordance with the individual School's stated criteria.

The role of the CCI Faculty Affairs Committee with regard to promotion and tenure cases is to ensure that candidates receive fair consideration. As such, the committee will look to see if University policy was followed, if School bylaws were followed, if the criteria for tenure and/or promotion were made clear to the candidates, if the candidates were given substantive and consistent guidance during the annual review process, if tenured/tenure-track candidates had a voice in the selection of external reviewers in accordance with UTK policy, if a proper enhanced (e.g., third-year) review was conducted, if proper peer teaching evaluations were conducted, if candidates had the opportunity to respond to the School's recommendation in accordance with UTK policy. The CCI Faculty Affairs Committee's recommendation to the Dean focuses on the extent to which policies and bylaws were followed, and that the candidate received fair consideration.

VII. Peer Evaluation of Teaching

Peer teaching evaluations conducted in the College of Communication and Information follow the policies below. Unless otherwise noted, CCI follows the University of Tennessee's recommendations for peer teaching evaluations.

A. Peer Review Team Composition

Each peer review team, for tenured/tenure track faculty, must consist of at least two tenured faculty members. For non-tenure track full-time faculty each peer review team must consist of two faculty members, at least one of whom is a tenured faculty member with the second team member being either a tenure-track faculty member or a non-tenure track faculty member of higher rank. One must be selected from within the School by the School's director, and one must be suggested by the faculty member under review. One may come from outside the School. All requests to serve on the peer review team should come from the director. The director will ask one member of the peer review team to serve as its chair.

Serving on a peer review team should be considered the equivalent of a committee assignment within the School. It is recommended that novice evaluators be included on peer review teams with seasoned evaluators. Membership on peer review teams should be rotated among tenured faculty and, when appropriate, among non-tenure track faculty within a School when possible.

B. Timing of Review

A total of two peer teaching reviews must be conducted for each tenure-track faculty member during the probationary period prior to tenure. The first peer review must be conducted in the second or third year of the probationary period, and the second must be conducted in the fourth or fifth year. It is recommended that the second review be conducted at least three semesters after the first.

At least one peer teaching review must be conducted for each associate professor with tenure prior to consideration of promotion to rank of full professor. It is recommended that the peer teaching review for associate professors be conducted at least three years post-tenure.

At least one peer teaching review must be conducted for non-tenure-track full-time faculty members prior to consideration of promotion to senior lecturer or equivalent non-tenure-track rank. One peer teaching review must be conducted for non-tenure-track full-time faculty members prior to consideration of promotion to distinguished lecturer or equivalent non-tenure-track rank.

Any faculty member may request an informal review at any time.

C. Process

Each peer teaching review must be completed within one semester. The School's director should convene the peer review team early in the semester to facilitate scheduling of teaching observations, review of pedagogical materials, and feedback to the faculty member prior to the end of the semester.

The faculty member should provide the following materials to the peer teaching review team:

- a. course descriptions and current syllabi for courses to be observed;
- b. examples of teaching materials (e.g., PowerPoints, handouts, assignments);
- c. assessment examples (e.g., exams, rubrics used for grading assignments);
- d. access to online teaching sites if these are used (e.g., Canvas);
- e. UT Knoxville's standardized evaluations from previous semesters (currently SAIS).

Prior to conducting teaching observations, members of the peer teaching review team should meet with the faculty member to discuss his or her perspectives on teaching and the learning objectives for the classes to be observed.

The peer teaching review team must complete a minimum of two class observations (or combinations of other outreach/teaching situations) during separate class meetings and provide written evaluation of the observations to the chair of the review team. Ideally, class observations should occur in different courses. At least one of these class observations should also include in-class student interviews without the faculty member under review present. It is recommended that the team members coordinate in advance classroom visits with the faculty member under review and to identify the class observation in which the faculty member could allot time at the end of the class session to allow the observer to speak with the students.

D. Preliminary Report of the Task Force on Teaching Evaluation

Following examination of teaching materials and teaching observations, the peer teaching review team will produce a written report. The chair of the peer teaching review team will meet with the faculty member at the conclusion of the review to discuss the content of the report. The chair of the team will then forward the report to the School's director, who will discuss the report with the faculty member. After discussing the report with the director, the faculty member under review may submit a written response. The response, if any, must be attached to the report and placed within the faculty member's permanent file.

E. Use of Peer Teaching Review Reports

The reports of peer teaching review teams must be part of promotion and tenure considerations of tenure-track and non-tenure-track faculty and should be included in the tenure/promotion dossier in the appropriate location per the Faculty Evaluation Manual's dossier organization instructions. Directors may consider them in evaluating a faculty member's annual performance.

VIII. Amendment of Bylaws

A. Process

The bylaws of the College may be amended by a two-thirds vote at any scheduled meeting. At least five working days prior to the scheduled meeting, all College Faculty members must receive notice of an intention to amend, proposed amendments, and an agenda that provides opportunity for discussion and voting on proposed amendments.

B. Availability

Once an amendment has passed, the revised bylaws shall be available on the College website. In addition, a hard copy of the current bylaws shall be available in the College office and in each School office.
